

Asking for the way

Oh, hello! You are looking for..for what? A for the museum. The museum is pretty far away actually. That's not that easy to find. But I will help you at least to get to a certain point and then you just ask another person. It's like...go to the end of the street, yeah just straight ahead. Then you turn right. And then immediately the second time right. You see a supermarket or like a mall with a square inside. You just cross the square and on the other side, you see a big, big tower. It's called the World Trade Center. And there's a big square in front of the World Trade Center. And you cross that square and at the end you see a metro station. And I would suggest you just use the metro, go by metro to the station which is nearest to the museum and just ask a second time. I don't know really how the station is called. Just ask people in the metro. There won't be any problem. They will be very friendly and they will help you. Ok? Good luck! Bye.

Hello. What are you looking for? For the next metro station. Well, that's actually not that difficult. You go straight on until the end of the street. Then you turn right. You follow this street for about 400, 500 meters and at the end you come to a big square. You cross that square. Just go straight all the time, cross the square, just cross all the people, all the banks...there is a huge fountain and you pass the fountain and after the square you turn right. After that you see like a big supermarket. Yeah, one of those malls. And then you are actually already pretty close. There you should probably ask another person because you might have forgotten what I've told you right now. So go there, cross the square, go to the mall and just ask another person. You are already pretty close to the metro station then. Of course no problem. You're very welcome. Bye.
